I, Sergeant Jack Schappell, arrived at the location, and made contact with the suspicious male from the call for service, identified as a known vagrant by the name of "John Doe". John Doe also appeared to be under the influence of an illegal narcotic, as described in the call for service, and was acting extremely erratic and aggressive.

Upon further investigation, I discovered that John Doe had smashed out several vehicle windows, and was attempting to steal items from the vehicles themselves. After notifying Legion Security Dispatch of the situation, and requesting the assistance of the Rancho Cordova Police Department, I proceeded to place John Doe under arrest for felony vandalism and automotive burglary. While attempting to do so, John Doe began to resist, and physically assaulted me.

As a result of John Doe's actions, (as I was in fear for my safety), I engaged John Doe with my Oleoresin Capsicum spray, utilizing it in an attempt to subdue John Doe, and force him to cease his dangerous actions. John Doe began to comply a short time later, and cooperated fully with me as the Rancho Cordova Police Department arrived in the area. The Rancho Cordova Police Department then took custody of John Doe, and the owners of the damaged vehicles were contacted. John Doe was also issued a "602 - No Trespass" form for the location. The situation appeared to be resolved as of this time.
